According to a McKinsey study, 60% of employees leave companies as a result of lack of purpose and seeking a fresh challenge.

With all companies offering similar employee benefits, how do you stand out?

Implementing an effective employee volunteering programme can:

1. Keep your top employees engaged and refreshed

2. Send a message to the wider market

3. Scream and shout about your company's values and purpose

4. Help you stand out as a company and employer of choice

We are

With a 98 NPS and an average 317% increase in employee engagement, our clients are reaping the rewards

"We were struggling to engage employees with meaningful volunteering projects on [other volunteering platform]. Within 1 month on Matchable, 13% of employees signed up - that's 87% of our Annual Corporate Goal and more than double the engagement over the previous 10 months! We even had someone apply for a job because they saw we had launched with Matchable!"

"The Matchable team have taken the struggle of finding high impact volunteering projects off our plate, and helped us to hit our ambitious goal of £100k of impact value created through employee volunteering in under a year! We've had over 70% employee engagement with the tool, and the team have committed over 420 hours to charities in need of their individual skills."

"We've been working with Matchable for a few years now, and it's absolutely transformed the way that we do employee volunteering. The ease of access, the huge range of projects and the platform have been incredible. Their ability to find opportunities that are meaningful to our people, and follow up and inspire our team to take action has been brilliant."

“Astoundingly, the platform recorded 217% higher engagement than other employee volunteering initiatives. Most notably, businesses leveraging Matchable witnessed an 87% surge in staff retention among platform users”

The screenshot shows a news article from Business Matters. The headline is "How Matchable has Revolutionised Employee Retention and Attraction" by Oli Ballard, dated September 1, 2023. The article features a photo of a smiling woman, Wai Foong Ng, and a teal button that says "READ MORE HERE". A sub-headline reads "Leading businesses know that attracting and retaining top talent is paramount to success." Below this, it states: "However, the recruitment market has become increasingly complex over the past five years. Difficult market conditions, including a labour shortage coupled with low economic confidence."
